COURSE DESCRIPTION

The program's emphasis is on hazards, devices, and testing. It is designed for those already involved with the planning, design, installation, maintenance, and inspection of plumbing, piping systems, or water-supplied equipment that connects to the potable water system, either inside or outside of buildings. The pressure differential between the two systems may cause contaminated or polluted fluids to flow through connections with no control, ultimately changing the quality of the potable water. Reversal of flow in the water may be unpredictable. Backflow education and training will help you to effectively combat all actual and potential types of cross-connections.

Course length: 30 hours (4 days) of theory & practical instruction. Successful completion of both written & practical exams is required to receive your AWWA Cross Connection Control Specialist Tester Certificate.

THE PRESENTER

Daniel Wilson has instructed full time Plumbing Apprenticeship and Cross Connection Control Program at Medicine Hat College for 28 yrs. He has 25 yrs. experience part time Testing Backflow Preventers (Daniels Plumbing) in Southern Alberta. Personally has tested over 400 devices a year in Southern Alberta. Owner/operator of BEATS, Backflow Education and Training Services, mobile tester training lab serving Western Canada.. Active committee member (25 years) with Western Canada Section American Water Works Association Cross Connection Control. He enjoys instructing & passing on his personal Plumbing & Cross Connection Control experiences to his students.
